Glimpses of City

Datia, located in the Bundelkhand region of northern Madhya Pradesh, is a historic town known for its rich cultural and architectural heritage. Once the capital of the Datia princely state under the Bundela Rajputs, it is home to the magnificent 17th-century Datia Palace (Bir Singh Palace), which showcases an Indian Architecture. The town is also famous for Pitambara Peeth, a revered Shakti temple, and Sonagiri, a prominent Jain pilgrimage site with over 100 temples. Surrounded by hilly terrain and fertile plains, Datia combines historical significance, spiritual importance, and traditional local crafts, making it a notable cultural and tourist destination in Madhya Pradesh. It is 30km from Jhansi and 70km from Gwalior.

Our College

Government P.G. College, Datia is a prominent higher education institution in Datia, Madhya Pradesh, established in 1958 and functioning under the state's Department of Higher Education. It is an Autonomous, PradhanMantri College of Excellence in 2024 accredited with NAAC Grade B+ and affiliated with Jiwaji University, Gwalior, offering a wide range of undergraduate and postgraduate courses in arts, science, and commerce with modern facilities like laboratories, library and student support services. The college focuses on quality education, research and holistic development, serving thousands of students from the region and preparing them for academic and professional success.
